LP Museum Series Udu - new - no longer made - $125

LP Museum Series Udu Drum

Hand-crafted by trained artisans, each LP Music Collection Museum Series Udu Drum has a distinctive exterior finish with a textured surfaces for creating rubbing sounds. The 12" size is smaller than the traditional LP Udu Claytone drums. Ideally priced for gift giving. Perfect for community drumming or playing while meditating.

The low end tones are as rich and natural as they come, and the slappy-poppy sounds are extremely mellow, yet they cut very well. A must have for any percussionist-drummer looking for a great auxilliary sound.

Bass tones, slaps, finger tones and other sounds all come out sounding wonderful for a drum that's so reasonably priced.

LP Box included

Toca Udu - Clay - no longer made – new - $80

A traditional clay Udu by Toca - these are no longer made - with support base and original box - new

The Udu possesses a distinct subtle bass tonal quality, creating liquidy water droplet sound. The clay construction is based upon centuries-old African traditions whereby women would play a water jug with an additional hole at ceremonies. The name "Udu" has been derived from the Nigerian Ibo language, meaning "pottery".

An Udu Drum is played by in a seated position with the drum on the player's lap. The performer hits any part of the drum with the palm of the hand or the finger tips. The textured surface provides additional tonal variations by creating rubbing sounds.
